The Wrightslaw Advocacy Conference is designed to inform and motivate parents, educators, advocates, and attorneys to advocate for appropriate education for children with disabilities. You will learn important information about the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, No Child Left Behind and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. The practical ideas and strategies gained from the conference can be applied immediately to build your confidence level as you advocate for children with disabilities. The information fosters a working relationship between families and schools, and offers helpful advice when the working relationship has reached an impasse.

Individuals who have previously attended the popular Wrightslaw Advocacy Bootcamp are encouraged to attend this conference. Changes to IDEA (a.k.a. Reauthorization) will be covered in depth, including how the changes affect IEP development. In addition, new information on NCLB will be provided .
